

~~The invention concerns a A device for closing a container and a container equipped with such a device designed to close a container [(3)] provided with a neck [(2)], wherein the device includes. Said device comprises: a first portion designed to form forming a closure element [(4)]; a second annular portion (5), designed to be maintained positioned around [the] a neck [(2)]; [and] a third portion forming a tamper-evident tab [(6)] linking the first portion [(4)] to the second portion [(5)], and which is connected to [said] the first and second portions [(4, 5)] by frangible means [(8, 9)] so that the tamper-evident tab must and which is designed to be removed upon first use so as to release the closure element [(4)]; and storage means for allowing the insertion of the tamper-evident tab therein. Said device defines means (14) for storing (F) the tamper-evident tab (6; 106), once [said] the tamper-evident tab has been separated from the first and second portions.~~